Dear Jack:

My colleagues and I are indebted to you for a stimulating and provocative discussion of "The News Behind the Headlines." As you could no doubt tell from the responsiveness of the audience, your address was well received. You may be interested to know that in addition to those in attendance in the auditorium an almost equal size group watched your presentation via closed-circuit television.

I very much regret that I had to miss part of your talk, particularly the discussion session. Frank and candid communication between the press and the government is a necessity for the effective functioning of our system. Your visit certainly contributed to such an exchange.

Yours,

/s/ Stansfield Turner
